LUCK IS WITH COOLIDGE

Again President Coolidge rides with Lady Luck.

Assuming he has an eye on another four years in the White House, it begins to look as though there was no political necessity for his selection of the heart of the farm-bloc country for his vacation home.

Corn and wheat are close behind industrial securities on the ladder to higher prices. The present encouraging quotations are "futures" but are fair guarantees of good prices on the farms during and after the harvest.

Behind the rising grain prices are the backward season, floods and tornadoes, and yet the grain states will produce heavily this year. Flooded areas will be late in planting but the flood waters have brought them new rich soil to promise them bumper crops. It looks like another prosperous year for the farmers in general.

Paradoxical though it seems, agricultural prosperity was the last thing desired by the politicians who have been capitalizing the plight of the farmers. And it may seem no less paradoxical that President Coolidge, who deprived the farmer of government aid, desires nothing better than good times for the corn and wheat growers.

Presidents are not responsible for hard times or good times, but White House tenants undesirable of moving have always found national prosperity most convenient and comforting in a pre-election year.

HOW DO YOU READ?

"Tell me what you eat, and I will tell you what you are," has cried a publicist so often that he has coined a house hold axiom. Well might another say: "Tell me what you read and I will tell you what you are!"

The mind is the house in which we live more truly than is the body. If we furnish the mind garishly we must live in a garish house. If we furnish the mind carelessly, we must live in a slovenly house. If we take our mental furniture only from the past, we shall live in the past alone. If we take it only from the faddish notions of the present we shall live amid fads and foibles, which vanish as we know them.

But if, on the other hand, our mental diet is balanced, comprised of the foods tested by time and sauced and spiced by the piquancy of the present, we may live a balanced, ordered life.

We can with impunity pour poisons and dark, wild, disordered thoughts into our minds no more than we can day after day find strength and health from spurious foods, hastily prepared, indigestible.

To read well, read discriminatingly, widely, thoroughly.

What we read becomes part and parcel of us.

It is presumed that picnic ants never heard of the law of supply and demand.

It can be proved without insurance statistics that careful drivers live longer.

A gentleman farmer is just like any other kind except that he loses more money.

About the only thing a man can achieve without some inspiration is whiskers.

If they speak of her efficiency, she remembers sadly that she has taught for seven years without getting a husband.

SYNOPSIS
Bob Ward, poor college student, working as a dancing partner for rich women, falls in love with Sally Smith, a cigarette girl. She warns him against the mysterious and beautiful Mrs. Hammond, habitue of the roadhouse, who finds her "thrill" in "hunting" Bob, who, however, trusts her. She offers him free use of her secret apartment. Bob quarrels with Sally, who in spite goes to a wild party, where Aldrich, a financier, preys upon her. Bob, learning where she is, raids the party, denounces her, then rushes off to Mrs. Hammond.

CHAPTER XVI.
By afternoon of the following day—which was one of those rare and peaceful Sundays in June when it seems that there could be nothing wrong in the world—a bit of shame, a lot of repentance, and a great deal of humble anxiety to re-right things animated the aching bosom of little Sally Smith.
Her brothers had told her of Bob's second visit to the house, after she had left with Mannon for Mazie's. Sally reasoned that this indicated on Bob's part a contrition for their earlier quarrel, and a resolve not to go to Mrs. Hammond. But Sally's hasty spite in going to Mazie's party, and the conditions under which she had been found there by Bob, had maddenedly torn down the new understanding that Bob had been attempting to build.

Therefore, this serene Sabbath afternoon, Sally finally brought her timid self to the determination that she must seek Bob out and endeavor to explain matters to him. It was not so much a case of swallowing pride for Sally to do this as it was of abasement for the condition in which he had found her at Mazie's. If Sally had been ex-

Her Mother, hardened by adversity into a money seeker, ready to sell her daughter in matrimony to the highest bidder, hardly brooked girlish love confidences!

When Sally reached her, Mazie was propped up on a brocaded chaise longue; hot water bottles at her feet and ice packs on her head, recovering from the after effects of the night before. Mazie had always prided herself on the variety of her entertainment for gentlemen friends, but her program had never before included assault and battery. She had always kept indignation nostrums and plenty of ice water to take care of weak-stomached guests; but never before had she had to administer first aid for black eyes, broken noses, and mashed lips to the Twelve Best Clubmen. The strain of this duty, the damage she believed done to her reputation as a hostess, the need for calling a doctor to set Tom Mannon's fractured jawbone—all these little odds and ends of cleaning up the carnage wrought by Bob Ward had given Mazie a most severe headache.

Mazie, however, was one of those souls, soft at base, who mellow with trouble. She regretted even partially helping Mrs. Hammond in her frame-up against Sally. She had only agreed to take Sally as a guest for the evening, and knew nothing of the details of Mrs. Hammond's plan. Certainly, because of the visitation from Bob, which she had not bargained for, and which she felt was somehow a punishment for her share in Mrs. Hammond's scheme, Mazie's sympathetic cooperation switched back wholly to Sally.

"You poor little cutie," Mazie blurted out after Sally had tearfully recounted her efforts to locate Bob, "if I were you I'd put him out of your head. The Big Boy's gone to Mrs. Hammond's love-nest. That's all, kid. He ain't worth worrying about. He's a lotta bunk—all men are a lotta bunk!"
A sharp, insistent ringing of the apartment bell interrupted Sally's loyal inclination to voice some sort of an excuse for Bob's course.

The maid entered and announced: "Mrs. Hammond!"

The girls, in utter amazement, looked at each other. What could she want? Mazie stiffened hesitantly to the maid, "Show her in!" Sally's first diffident inclination had been to hide until this hateful creature had gone. But, proudly, she decided against running away; and stood, while the blood drained from her face and left it chalk-white, facing Mrs. Hammond.

Mrs. Hammond, for all her haughty poise, was taken aback to find Sally present, and exchanged a quick look with Mazie. Finding in the gold-digger's eyes no hint of alliance, Mrs. Hammond tightened her lips a bit, girding her mind, so to speak, for a lone fight.

"I've come on a message of the utmost importance to both of you," she began, after she had sat down at Mazie's carelessly gestured invitation.

Sally couldn't help it; the words escaped her lips in involuntary fright, because of Mrs. Hammond's grave manner: "Is it about Bob?"

Mrs. Hammond, staring at Sally coldly, ignored the question; but turned to Mazie and declared, while pinpoints of red glinted in her eyes:

"I've been sent by my dearest and closest friend, Mrs. Aldrich—"

Mazie sat bolt upright; even Sally caught her breath.

"Yes," continued Mrs. Hammond, "you may well look surprised, both of you, for Mrs. Aldrich has had detectives following her husband. She knows all."

"Say," snapped Mazie, "I'd keep my own skirts clean if I were you!" "No use taking that attitude," sneered Mrs. Hammond; "I'm just giving you a friendly tip that Mrs. Aldrich is not to be trifled with."

After a further brief exchange of verbal shots with the boiling Mazie, Mrs. Hammond made a haughty exit.

Close on the heels of her departure there came another ring. This time it was Aldrich, distinguished looking in his afternoon suit; but the richest man in New York was the most excited man in the world. "Jove, Mazie!" he cried, "this is a pretty pickle. What was she doing here?"

"What was she doing here?" went out. My wife!"

"Mrs. Hammond is your wife?" cried both girls in amazement.

"Mrs. Hammond, eh? Mrs. Aldrich, you mean. I saw her coming out of here just as I stepped off the elevator, and ducked until she got by. Lord, what I'm worried about is how she found out that I knew you, and how she learned this address!"

"Dicks!" said Mazie significantly. "Oh Lord!" groaned the greatest financial wizard in the world, reduced to the humble proportions of an harassed human male by the Great Common Reducer—fear of his wife.

(To be concluded.)

When Sally reached her, Mazie was propped up on a chaise longue.

perionced in her cups, Bob's raging visitation would most likely have shocked her sober. But it was Sally's misfortune to be innocent. Resolutely, she put on her simplest frock, and made her way up-town to New York University's campus. She was unacquainted in the University Heights neighborhood, but by dint of inquiries she located Mrs. O'Sully's unchoice boarding house.

"He's not here any more," said Mrs. O'Sully in response to Sally's shy question. There was hurt in Mrs. O'Sully's manner as she explained, "He moved out without giving a bit of notice, and him after being here four years!"

Freddy and Arch, summoned by Mrs. O'Sully, explained dolefully to Sally:

"We haven't any idea what got into old Sackcloth and Ashes. Hardly deigned to say good-bye to us. Just came home last night, packed up in a hurry, said he was leaving college, would never see us again, paid no attention to our questions, and beat it!"

"We ran down and watched," added Arch, "and saw that he went off in Mrs. Hammond's limousine. And that was the last of good, old Bob Ward!" he concluded mournfully.

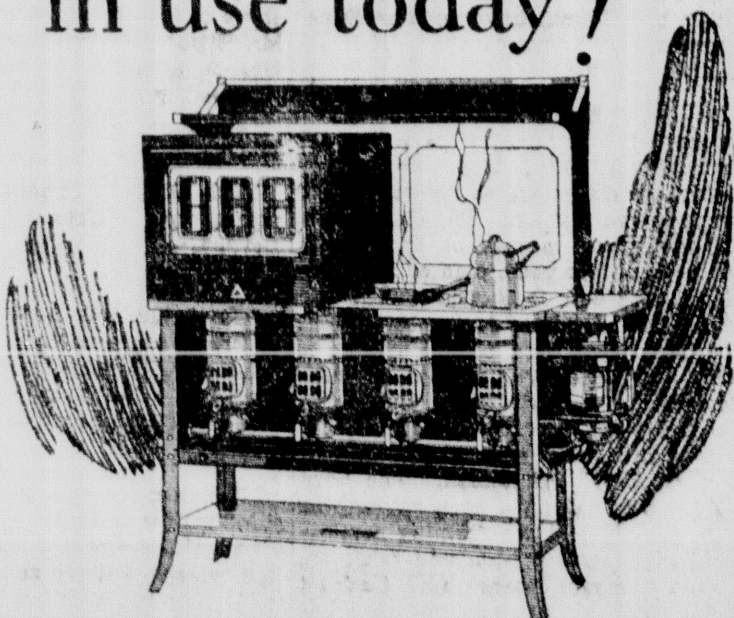

Fighting back the tears, Sally wandered downtown again.

Hardly knowing to whom to turn in her extremity, she found herself heading for Mazie Revere's. There had been a certain fondness between Mazie and her, before Bob had come to the Palisado Inn. It was as though Mazie saw in Sally something reminiscent of her own girlhood; and yearned, in a measure, to protect her. The worst of this was that Mazie's idea of protection was an offensive one; that she was not satisfied to consider virtue as its own reward. Mazie's protectionism reduced into the motto: "Get all you can!"

Anyway, there was absolutely no one else to whom Sally could go.

DANVILLE, Pa., June 23 (I.N.S.)—Countless parades have gone their guttering way down the main thoroughfare here and have been forgotten, but it remained for Danville's "kids" to give the town something to remember.

Guinea pigs and turtles, pet bees and white mice, snakes and tom-cats, each in the care of its own tiny master or mistress, took part in the annual "Kids' Day" parade here, in which prizes were given for the largest pet and the smallest, the cat with the shortest tail, the prettiest white mice, and so forth, through a long list of awards.

A record crowd lined the streets here as the strange procession tramped along. Dogs, sleek and shiny and ribbon-bedecked for the occasion, barked, chickens broke loose from their cages and spread confusion as the town's youngsters scrambled after them, and bedlam reigned generally, while the town's oldsters roared in enjoyment.

One tiny youngster stood, confused and abashed, tightly clutching a pigeon's pin feathers, his entry in the parade having made good his escape and perched on the roof of a nearby building.

The fastest turtle in the parade won its owner a harmonica, while the largest pet, a dray horse, won a watch for a small boy. The most comical pet, in the judges' opinion, was a guinea pig. Then there were prizes for the largest dog, the smallest pet—a bee—the best chicken, and the most unusual pet—a snail.

Efforts to judge the smallest dog almost ended in open hostilities. Finally a modern Solomon stepped forward with a pair of fish scales, and a little girl was awarded a set of books for her entry.

The parade is to be an annual affair, it is announced.

PITTSBURGH, June 23 (I.N.S.)—Arno C. Fieldner, superintendent of the local experimental station of the United States Bureau of Mines here has been appointed Chief Engineer of the department of experiment stations of the bureau. Fieldner, who has served as superintendent of the local bureau for several years, is rated as one of the department's outstanding research specialists. He is regarded as an expert and an authority on the technology of coal, coke and gas in ventilation problems, involving noxious gases in mines, tunnels and elsewhere.

During the World War Fieldner served as a major in the chemical warfare service and was placed in charge of gas mask research. The methods developed by him for testing the efficiency of gas masks and absorbents were generally used by the chemical warfare service and were adopted later by some of the laboratories of the Allies.

While serving as head of the Pittsburgh bureau, Fieldner's interests widened from fuels and gas to research on safety in mines and industrial establishments, and health problems in factories and mine workings. He organized and directed the exhaustive research work of the Bureau of Mines in connection with the New York and New Jersey Tunnel Commission on the combustion of automobile exhaust gases and the minimum safe concentration of carbon monoxide gas in tunnel atmospheres.

Fieldner has contributed a large number of articles to the scientific and technical press and is author of a long list of bulletins and other publications of the Bureau of Mines. Two years ago he was invited to become a member of the Coal Research club, of Great Britain.

COMMENCEMENT HELD AT DOYLESTOWN HIGH

DOYLESTOWN, Pa., June 23.—Sixty-five students were graduated from Doylestown High Tuesday night at the thirty-fifth annual commencement exercises held in the school auditorium before 800 persons. It was the largest class in the history of the school.

A feature of the program was the presentation by a committee of five students, an analysis of the high school failures during the past four years at Doylestown High. Teachers found that failures were the result of "irregular attendance," "inattention and carelessness," "lack of home study," "poor effort," "lack of application," and "too many social activities." The students gave as reasons: "Lack of home study," "poor effort," "inattention and carelessness" but added "not made to study."

The address to the graduates was delivered by Dr. William Mather Lewis, president of Lafayette College, Easton, who previously to the commencement addressed a joint meeting of the Kiwanis and Rotary Clubs of Doylestown, at the Doylestown Country Club.

The American Legion Medal was awarded to Oscar Trauger, a member of the senior class, by Post Commander Walter Trauger, of the A. R. Atkinson Post, of Doylestown.

The graduating class presented the school with a check for $50, to be used for the purchase of draperies for the school auditorium. The presentation was made by Stanley Hellerman, president of the class.

Other prizes awarded were as follows:

D. A. R. prize in American History, Miss Caroline Dohlenkopf, seventh grade student; American Legion Ladies' Auxiliary medal and certificate to eighth grade girl who best exemplified scholarship, honor, Americanism, leadership and service, Miss Jean Kerr; the Lincoln medal for the best essay on Abraham Lincoln, Hannah Patterson, sophomore class; Harlequin Players' Prize of Gold, for best amateur theatrical work during the year, George Mann; Livezey Award of $25 in gold for the member of the senior class who stands out as the "best all around senior" in scholarship, character, leadership and influence on the student body, and student activities, Miss Dorothy Driver.

The Class of 1925 Scholastic Prize, the income of a $500 fund, was awarded to Paul Detweiler.

The Mount Vernon prize of $25 donated by Mrs. William R. Mercer, of Doylestown, for the best prize on Mt. Vernon, was given to Paul Detweiler and Irvin Glancy.

The George H. Lorah Prizes in English, all money awards, were received by Rose Clymer, Martha Holmes, Marion Handwork, Dorothy Driver, Dorothy DeHart, Weldon Mann, Florence Leathman.

The Martha James Lorah Prizes in deeds of kindness were awarded to William Mason, Boy Scouts of Doylestown, Walter Rutherford, Gerald Hennessy, Gertrude Kolbe, Jane Sommers, Edna Gift, Irvin Warner and David Warner.

Diplomas were presented by William H. Satterthwaite, Jr., president of the board of education.

The complete list of graduates is as follows:

RELIEF FOR ALL WHO HAVE PILES

Tests over a period of five years in thousands of cases prove internal treatment and removal of cause is the one quick, harmless, painless, effective way to give pile sufferers real relief. Doctors agree and it means one need bother no more with salves and suppositories.

No matter how long or severely you suffer—just swallow two small harmless pills three times daily with a little water and in 24 hours in many cases and shortly after in even bad cases the piles and suffering go away completely. One user says:

"While in your city a year ago I was suffering terribly with piles. One of your leading physicians advised an immediate operation. Friends suggested trying these wonderful Colic File Pills first, which I did with marvelous success. After taking one bottle I was entirely cured." Signed, Geo. E. Gilson, 112 Redfield Place, Syracuse, N. Y.

Anyone may get the same results. Colic File Pills are made in the World's largest laboratory of finest ingredients—harmless to the most delicate person—in a few hours sit down in comfort—sleep in peace. By all means get a bottle if suffering now. Colic File Pills are at drug stores, or by return mail in plain package on receipt of price—Colic Chemical Co., Inc., Broadwood, Md.

Keep in Trim!

Good Elimination Is Essential to Good Health.

THE kidneys are the blood filters. If they fail to function properly there is apt to be a retention of toxic poisons in the blood. A dull, languid feeling and, sometimes, toxic backaches, headaches, and dizziness are symptoms of this condition. Further evidence of improper kidney function is often found in burning or scanty passage of secretions. Each year more and more people are learning the value of Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, in this condition. Scarcely a nook or hamlet anywhere but has many enthusiastic users. Ask your neighbor!

WONDERFUL NEW REMEDY FOR RHEUMATIC ACES AND PAINS

Liniment They Use on Big League Ball Players Like
Coveleski

STOPS ACES, PAINS AND
STIFFNESS QUICKLY

Big league baseball stars like Walter Johnson, Herb Pennock, Bucky Harris, Ty Cobb, George Sisler, Coveleski and others cannot afford to be laid up with aches, pains, swollen joints or stiffness a single day, so they must use the best remedy money can buy.

The liniment they use out at the ball park works like lightning and in a jiffy relieves aches, pains, stiffness or swollen joints due to sprains, rheumatic troubles, neuritis, neuralgia, etc. A thousand times each baseball season this wonderful liniment does its work in big leagues, professional and amateur baseball circles, and yet this liniment they use is so mild it would not harm a baby's skin and never blisters no matter how much you rub it in or bandage it up.

The liniment is named after the famous trainer, Mike Martin, the man who for years was trainer of the New York "Yankees," Cincinnati "Reds," Columbia University, etc., and who now is trainer of Washington's 1924-25 American League champion baseball club.

It is called Mike Martin's Liniment. Local druggists are featuring it. Any person suffering with aches, pains, lame back, rheumatism, swollen joints, stiffness, neuralgia or neuritis, should get a bottle. It is pleasant to use, never stains, and by rubbing a little into the sore, stiff, aching parts you get almost magic relief.

MIKE MARTIN, Trainer
Washington Baseball Club

Ball players often catch cold, get sore or bungled up and come to the ball park hardly able to walk, yet out they come from a good rub with Mike Martin's Liniment, as lively, full of pep and ginger, as anybody could wish. Watch them scamper and prance in rain or shine. You'd never dream they ever had an ache or pain in their lives. Mike Martin, by making this liniment available to the general public in drug stores, is doing a great thing for those who suffer. If reader lives out of town and druggist hasn't it, write Mike Martin, Ball Park, Washington, D. C., and he will send a large size bottle with full directions, parcel post, for $1.00. All good druggists sell smaller trial size bottles for a few cents.—(Adv.28.)

Cooking Chats with 6 Famous Cooks

SALADS SPARE THE COOK IN HOT WEATHER

(Editor's Note: You'll get many hot weather cooking tips from this article—one of a series which 6 famous cooks are contributing to this paper.)

Of course we're hungry, even though the weather is hot! But we don't need the heavy foods so essential on cooler days. And there is no reason for any woman to wear herself out in the summertime, laboring over the stove.

MRS. KATE B. VAUGHN

Spare Yourself

Do as much of the preparation and cooking as possible in the early morning hours. If you must bake, do it just once a week. Don't light the oven every day.

And remember that salads, dainty or substantial, are a boon to cooks during hot weather.

Mrs. Kate Brew Vaughn, director of household economics, Los Angeles Evening Express, suggests a simple cabbage and a carrot salad.

Use Cabbage and Carrots

Grate three raw carrots. Chop enough cabbage to make one cup. Chop one pimento and green pepper. Mix these ingredients with mayonnaise and put in icebox to chill. Serve on lettuce leaves.

If preferred, this salad may be served with French dressing.

With Cranberries

This is a cooling dish—cranberry salad. Here's Mrs. Vaughn's own recipe:

1 pound cranberries
2 tablespoons gelatine
2 cups sugar
1/2 cup water
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 cup nut meats
1 cup celery
1 cup mayonnaise

Boil sugar and water, add cranberries and boil until they pop. Add gelatine, softened in 2 tablespoons water. Cool and add lemon juice, nut meats and celery. Mold or serve in spoonfuls on lettuce leaf with sweet mayonnaise.

There is a big hot weather advantage in cooking with oil. You use only as many burners as are absolutely necessary. Then, too, in the best oil stoves the burners come in a row. There is no reaching across a hot fire.

Two Fruits

Another simple salad, suggested by Miss Margaret Allen Hall, nutrition specialist at the Battle Creek College of Home Economics, is made of dates and apples.

2 cups diced apples
1 cup cut dates
1/2 cup Golden Dressing

Peel the apples and cut into one-half inch cubes. Marinate with the juice of a lemon to prevent discoloration. Put the dates into cold water. Remove the stones and cut each date into about four pieces. Four boiling water over them. Chill thoroughly. Mix apples and dates and stir in the Golden Dressing. Garnish with lettuce or nasturtium leaves.

Golden Dressing

1/2 cup pineapple, apple or other light colored fruit juice
1/4 cup lemon juice
1/2 cup sugar
2 eggs

Beat the eggs sufficiently to blend the yolk and the white, but not until foamy. Add the juice and the sugar. Cook in a double boiler, stirring constantly until thickened. Set in cold water to cool.

One of the biggest advantages of cooking with an oil stove is the fact that it can be moved to the coolest spot. Cook on the back porch, the summer kitchen, wherever it's most convenient. No fuss or piping to connect. Take the stove wherever you want it.

Lettuce and Bacon

Boiled or mashed potatoes, with "wilted" lettuce, or lettuce salad with bacon dressing, make a good luncheon with a dessert and beverage.

This is the recipe used by Miss Lucy G. Allen, head of the Boston School of Cookery.

Wash lettuce and set away to chill. At lunch time make the bacon dressing. Dice four or five very thin slices of bacon and fry until crisp. Mix one-half teaspoonful mustard, one teaspoonful sugar, and add to one egg slightly beaten.

Then add one-third cup of vinegar which should be very weak. (Too strong vinegar will coagulate the egg and give a curdled appearance to the dressing.) Pour this into the pan containing bacon and fat. Have a low flame and stir rapidly until the mixture is the consistency of heavy cream. Pour over lettuce.

Make Your Own Combinations

Instead of warming up leftover meats, dice and combine with cold cubed potatoes, peas and salad dressing. This makes a luncheon dish in itself. Other combinations will no doubt occur to you.

TWO MORE IN TRANSPACIFIC RACE

TRUSIS ACCUSED DAUGHTER

George E. Morse, eighty-four, Middlesex, N. J., millionaire, has faith in his daughter, Bessie Morse, forty. They're shown at home after Morse put up bail for the daughter, who was accused of plotting to have him and other members of the family murdered. The daughter said the plot was a figment of the imagination of her maid, who is alleged to have hired police officers, thinking them gunmen, to kill the family. (International Newsweek.)

To Cuba, Maybe

Robert Bass, former Governor of New Hampshire, is being considered by President Coolidge for the post of Ambassador to Cuba. (International Illustrated News.)

A Jesse James

Mathew "Matt" Kimes, twenty-two-year-old Oklahoma bad man, is at it again. After stealing an automobile containing a sleeping baby, he returned the infant, then kidnapped George McAnich, chief of police at Jennings, Okla., carried him into the hills and left him tied to a tree. Kimes is also wanted for bank robbery. (International Newsweek.)

Fire JUST LOVES A DISORDERLY Housekeeper

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., June 23 (I.N.S.)—The season's first heat prostration was recorded here today when Valentine T. Kissell, 71, of the Kissell Concrete Block Co., collapsed downtown. He was rushed to a hospital, but released after injuries to his forehead were treated.

PITTSBURGH, June 23 (I.N.S.)—After firing four bullets into his head, Philip Mucora, 37, a shoemaker, walked 100 yards before he collapsed here today. In a critical condition, he was rushed to a hospital. Worry over financial reverses was blamed for the attempted suicide.

ception of some thirty dollars, which was subscribed on the spot by the congregation.

The choir is busily engaged in raising the necessary money to repair the organ, while the men of the parish have devoted their spare time to the pulling down of the sheds at the back of the church, the beautifying of the church grounds and the erection of a garage.

In addition to all this the Sunday School has been completely reorganized on systematic lines, and last, but not least, the number in the congregations has doubled. The Church is looking forward to a period of renewed spiritual activity and hopes with God's help to do a great work both among its own members and in the community.

At the Trinity Sunday Communion service there were 50 communicants. The choir was at its best and ably assisted by Mrs. Flora Juengling, of Collingswood, N. J., who delighted the congregation with her rendering of the offertory music. Rev. R. K. Yerkes, D. D., of the Philadelphia Divinity School, officiated at the celebration and the sermon was preached by the pastor, Rev. Crosby.

Among the visitors from a distance were Mrs. Wright and family. Mrs. Wright is the widow of the late Rev. Joseph Wright, for many years rector of the parish.
